Dr. Richard P. Chait, Professor of Higher Education at Harvard University, delivered the MC Commencement Address in May. In his remarks he stated, "The 'higher' in higher education is, above all else, education for a higher purpose. It is education to serve the common good; it is education to provide a public, as well as personal benefit."

Imagine: 43 participants from as far away as Colorado, 17 projects completed, classes from 1933 to 2001 represented--as well as friends of the college, parents of students, staff, retired faculty, and some 'walk-ons,' a beautiful 5 days on campus, staying in the dorm (for some), eating in the cafeteria (for most), cook-outs, lectures, great camaraderie, and a recapturing of the 'Maryville Spirit'.

Kin Takahashi would have been proud. Kin was the 'can do' 5'2", 123 lb. Japanese student who started football at Maryville in 1889 and championed the building of Bartlett Hall. It was in his spirit of participation that the first annual Maryville College work week was named.

In addition to the giving of treasure, some of the alumni and friends of the college had expressed a desire to give also time and talent. Working with VP and Treasurer Ron Appuhn and Physical Plant Manager Andy McCall, the week of June 16 was chosen as the best time for the first annual Kin Takahashi Week at Maryville College. Invitation letters were mailed with application forms defining the types of projects preferred. Once received, lists of likely projects were selected from the many needing to be done to match the talents available. Folks rendezvoused each morning at Bartlett Hall to pick their assignments, materials were provided, and off we went. Breakfast, lunch, and dinner were provided in the Margaret Ware Dining Room, and had lectures on a Maryville College update and the MC2000 program by the college staff and a lecture on the history of Maryville College by Dr. Art Bushing '43.

Herb Catlin '55, Chuck Frissell '57, Jim Crawford '56, Ric Ruffner '75 and "Coach" Boydson Baird '41 dug up, replaced and reset the bricks in the walk at the entrance to the Center for Campus Ministry (the old library and post office). We could hear their stories and laughter all the way to the third floor of Fayerweather.

Former MC Board Chairman Harwell Proffitt '40, Tom Eberhard '60 who was everywhere. Mary Gladys Brown Pieper '36, her sister Lynn Ann Brown Best '36, and Eleanor Stout Barker '46 trimmed, planted, and mulched the flower beds at the entrance to the college from Lamar Alexander Parkway, Humphreys Court, located behind Anderson Hall and to the side of Fayerweather.

Stuart '50 and Sarah (Sally) Brown McNiell '53, Ken Marine '69, Gerald Burnett '83, Kimberly Spargo '87 and others stained, lacquered, and painted the 13 benches around the walkways of the campus. The walkways were also cleared of overhanging limbs and shrubs.

Shirley Greaser (with Dan '60), Leigh Greaser Sterling, Glenn Tipton (known as Terry when at MC in '54-'55), Ellen Webb (a 'walk-on'), Rachael Gibson, Karen Wentz, Ann Proffitt Mullican '72, Mary Ann Thompson '55 and others painted the Continuing Education Offices, the Faculty Lounge, and the Commuter Lounge (all on the second floor of Fayerweather). From the CE Office folks, we got the moniker of "the angels". Must have been a long time since the offices were painted.

Parents of students, Fred and Priscilla Coe (Matthew), Elizabeth Peebles (Eleanor), and Tom and Becky Sherrod (Michael) wielded brushes to paint the Commuter Lounge and the fence around Crawford House. Fred mentioned he liked the idea of helping a school "where you can lay something down and it will be there when you come back...."

Recent grads Kristin Kant '96, Jeannine Quick '96, and Lucy Giles '95 worked alongside Jan Winkler Slough '69, Sue Kisch Birch '64 and her German shepherd "Sgt. York" and shared similar experiences at Maryville years apart. Roy and Ruth Light Fox '64, Donald Rugh '38, and Hubert Rust '44 willingly filled in where needed. Jean Campbell Rokes '33 was the official "gofer" and kept us in drinks and carried messages for tools and materials to Andy McCall.

Ron Appuhn, Ken Marine '69, and a host of helpers cleaned out the third floor of Fayerweather, filling a complete large dumpster in the process. One room of the third floor was stripped and sanded in preparation as a conference room.

The Alumni Gym exterior walls were painted (mostly touch up), book shelves were assembled in the library for archive storage, and the fence around Crawford House was stripped and painted. Helping on this last project was MC Board member Lamar Dunn's daughter Katie Dunn, class of 2001, as she enrolls at MC this fall.

To all of the above, and to those I inadvertently missed, a heartfelt thank you for all of your help.

Karen Wentz (wife of Ron Appuhn) said it for many of the participants, "What I enjoyed most about the week was the camaraderie, the chance to meet so many good and interesting people that make Maryville such a special place."

Chuck Frissell '57, a retired Air Force Colonel, asked, "Are we going to do this again next year? If we don't, I'm going to call Andy (McCall) and sign on for a week on my own, since this has been so much fun and I can see something tangible that I've done for Maryville College." Yes, Chuck, we're planning on the second annual Kin Takahashi Week at Maryville College June 8-12, 1998.

For those of you who would like to return to the campus for a day, a few days, or a week of time and talent participation, who would like to share in some great fellowship while doing projects that you can see your own contribution to the improvement of appearance and function of the college, come join us.

-Dan Greaser, '60.

Editor's Note -- In last year's President's Report, we introduced you to four outstanding students -- four members of the Class of 2000. We plan to follow their Maryville College careers for the next three years until they graduate. This year, we want to give you an update on two of them -- two students who exemplify the ideal of being '...beyond all question the Best Possible College...' in the area of service to community.

Max Williams hadn't really planned on spending his summer in the Dominican Republic. It just worked out that way.

As an MC freshman he immersed himself in service to the community. A Bonner scholar, Max tutored minority children through the Erskine program; assisted the librarian at Ft. Craig Elementary School; was an active member of Circle K; helped in various clean-up projects for the Environmental Club and volunteered with the local chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

So you see, he really needed something to do over the summer.

Originally from Canada, Max now lives in Port Charlotte, Florida. A Methodist group from his town was planning to sponsor a group that would travel to the Caribbean. So, he signed on with them.

The group's base was a boys' orphanage in Santo Domingo. Years ago, this same Methodist group had fixed it up -- some renovations, some painting and other clean-up work.

From that base, the group fanned out into the surrounding countryside. Initially, each group did renovations on other facilities. But, said Max, the main purpose was to support the children. They tutored and taught the children. Max's Spanish minor came in handy.

"The kids really appreciated us. They wanted to play with you all day. And, you can tell they are fond of Americans," he said.

During recreation times, Max would play basketball and baseball with the boys. Sometimes, they watched television -- some Dominican shows and some American shows dubbed in Spanish. And the boys would bombard him with questions about life in America.

At the end of the experience, Max gave away many gifts to the children. He brought candy and towels to give away. He even gave them the shirt off his back -- literally. Finally, in the most supreme sacrifice of all, Max gave away his Nikes.

"They were so appreciative. You can tell they are just basically very happy people -- in spite of everything."

And Max is pretty happy, too. Volunteerism fits him well. Over the past summer, he completed 360 hours of community service. He started volunteering as a child in Canada and it has always been a part of who he is.

"It's just natural. If I weren't involved with the Bonner Scholars, I would still be doing what I am doing. If I can do it and I have the time to do it, why not?"

Service to inmates is rewarding

Crissy Wieck, a double-major in business and history from the Nashville area keeps a very busy schedule as an MC sophomore.

She plays soccer. She serves on the Student Programming Board and is a Peer Mentor.

A Bradford Scholar, she is also very involved in the Student Literacy Corps. Even with this busy schedule, she finds time to do some very important volunteerism. Each week, twice a week, she goes to the Blount County jail to tutor female inmates. The goal of the program is to prepare these women to take their GED exams.

"At first, I was a little scared in going to the jail," she said. "Now, I can't imagine not going back. It's very rewarding."

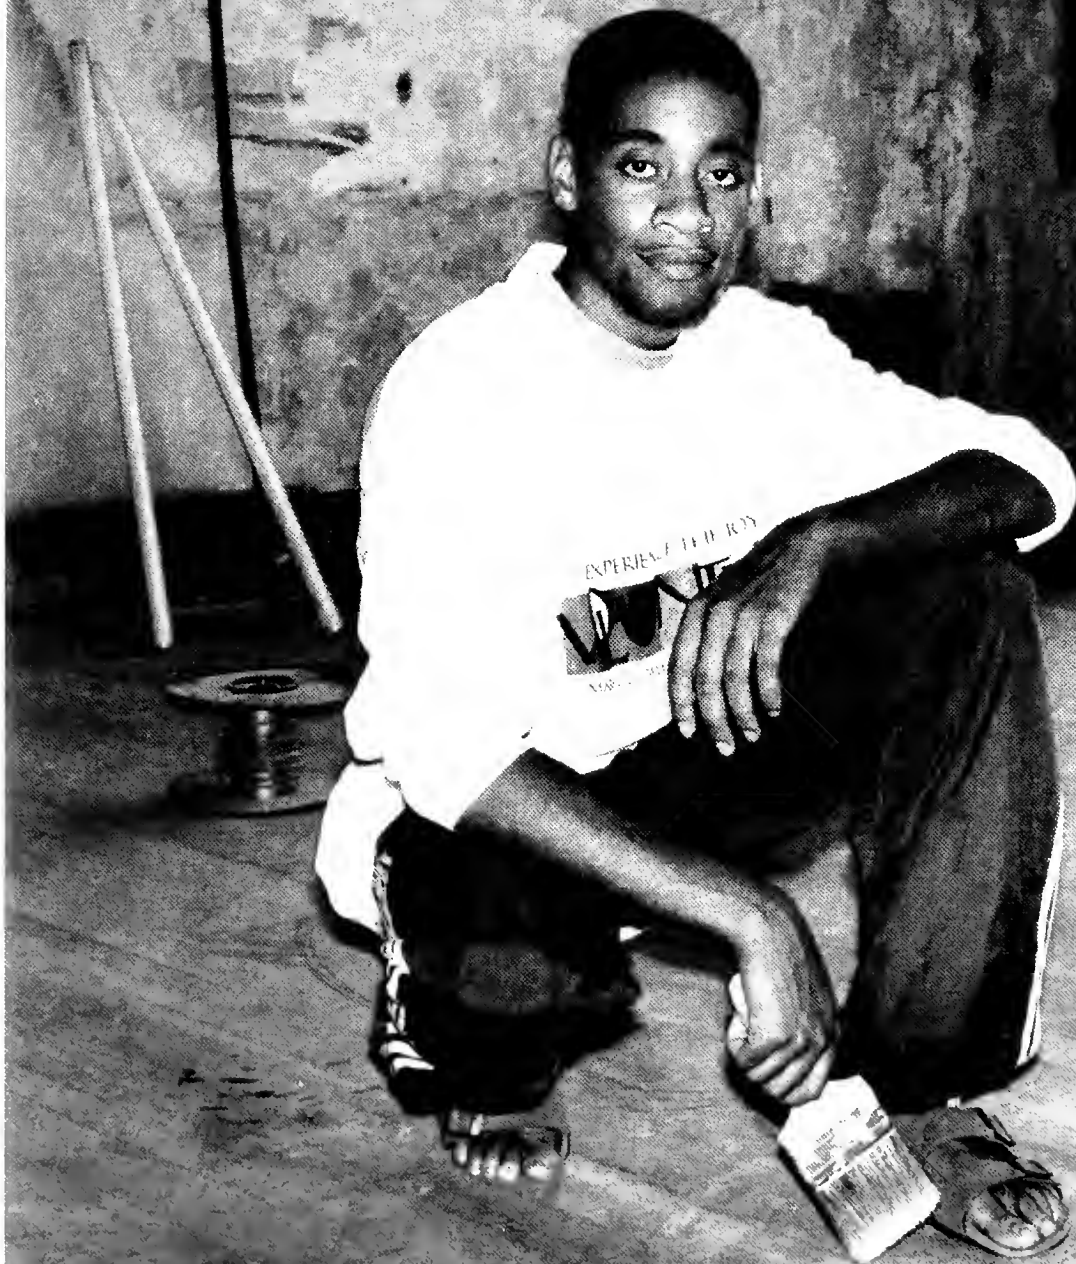

As part of the sessions, Crissy asks the students to keep a journal. They spend a little time talking about it. Then, they launch into the weekly lessons which might include math or reading.

"Our goal is to help them to stay out of jail once they are discharged. The ones we reach, most often, are the ones with children.

"You can tell they appreciate what we are doing. More than once, I have gotten back to the College and found a note from one of the women. They slip it to you while you aren't looking. One was pretty simple, but it says it all: 'Thank you so much...'"

Community Service on the Campus

Community Service has long been a tradition at Maryville College. The College's founder, Dr. Isaac Anderson, honored his commitment to help others when he bonded himself to the Blount County Court in order to secure a slave's freedom. That former slave, George Erskine, was tutored by Dr. Anderson and later became the first African-American missionary to Africa from the Union Presbytery. Long before President Bill Clinton and retired Gen. Colin Powell called for a resurgence of volunteerism with their "America's Promise, The Alliance for Youth," initiative last April, Maryville College strived to become the best possible college in public service.

To that end, the College has numerous ways to involve students, faculty and staff right in our own community.

The College sponsors five National Presbyterian Scholarships and receives one NPC scholar chosen by PCUSA. Additionally, last year the College had 41 Church & College Scholars. All of the scholarships go to students who have been active in their community Presbyterian churches. According to the MC Chaplain Stephen college and community."

Other aspects of volunteerism on the Maryville Campus are found through the Bonner Scholars and the Bradford Scholars programs. Bonner Scholars receive funds for college from the Bonner Foundation. In exchange, they donate 10 hours of service a week to the community throughout the academic year, and 240 hours over the summer. The College had 65 Bonner Scholars last year. Some of the initiatives that benefitted from their volunteer hours included: Rural Outreach to the Aging Discovering Solutions (ROADS), the Girl Scouts, Blount County Juvenile Court, Good Samaritan Clinic, area elementary schools and food banks, and the College's own Kids On The Block, educational puppets which teach lessons on safety, disabled children, alcohol and drug use prevention.

core of the Student Literacy Corp. Last year, 38 Literacy Corp students were involved in teaching adults to read, including inmates at the county jail as well as tutoring young mothers at the College MCFamilies Center.

The George Erskine Tutoring program, named in honor of the former slave taught by Isaac Anderson, involves as many as 12 students who tutor students at an area middle school and at the local Martin Luther King Center.

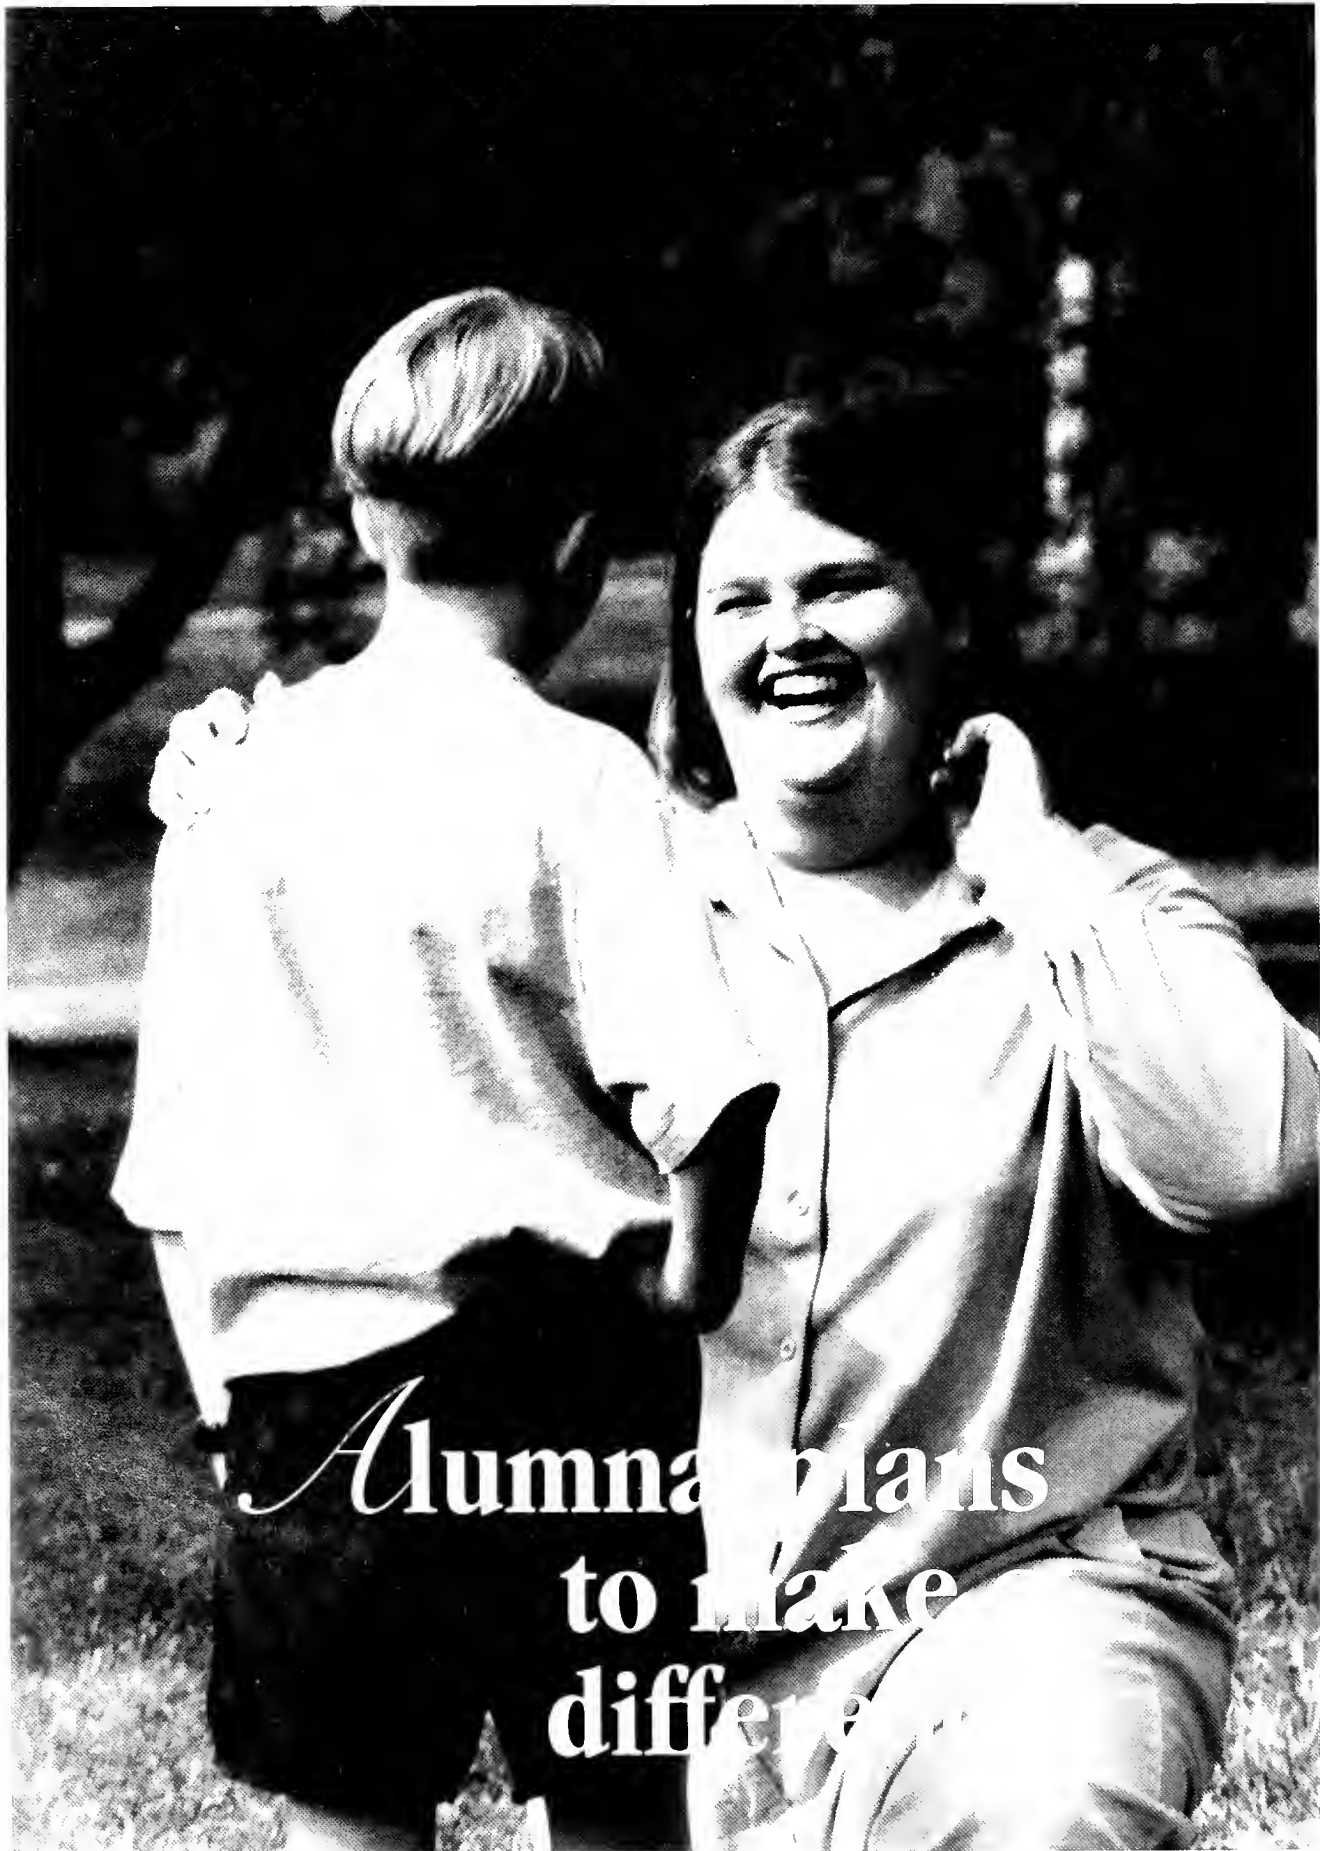

The College takes a leadership role in housing and environmental concerns as well. MC has a chapter of Habitat for Humanity which works closely with the local Blount County Chapter. Last year the 20-25 active student members sponsored a Habitat Theme Week which raised funds and awareness on campus. The students also sponsored and built a storage shed for use off-campus.

The Environmental Club on campus is responsible for the recycling of paper and aluminum cans on campus. They cleaned up a city street adjacent to the College three times last year and participated in the Little River Rescue clean-up activities.

The initiatives mentioned above are just some of the many ways in which the Maryville College community is involved in public service. Not mentioned are the countless hours volunteered by individual students, faculty and staff who are involved in their own churches and organizations. Isaac Anderson would be proud to see the altruistic spirit that lives today in the College he founded.

Alumna plans to make difference

Rebecca Heckler is a vibrant, self-confident young woman with a plan for the future. A 1997 graduate of Maryville College, Heckler holds a challenging, sometimes life-threatening job she loves, while anticipating the day 5-7 years from now when she'll have a Ph.D. in family therapy and counseling.

A long-time MC staff member remembers "Beckie" as a freshman. "She spent almost every evening of her first semester here, sitting in front of the TV in her residence hall lobby, very unsure of herself," he says.

So how did Rebecca make the transition from uncertain freshman to program assistant at a residential treatment home for abused youth? Heckler gives a lot of credit to Maryville College and its faculty and staff.

"I feel very well prepared in terms of my education," she says, "but it's the extra things, too, that made the difference--the support system, the security, and the one-on-one relationships I had all over campus made me believe in myself and want to give some of that to others."

Back when it was time to pick a college, Heckler was unsure of where she wanted to go. She came from Ambler, PA, for a visit because her parents, Harry and Miriam Stults Heckler '64, both graduated from MC. However, it wasn't love at first sight.

"The visit didn't go so well," according to Heckler, "but when my parents asked me where I wanted to go to college, I was surprised to hear myself say Maryville. It was where I needed to be--a very right decision for me."

Heckler admits that the first year was tough. "I was homesick," she says, "very far from home in a Southern culture that was foreign to me."

As time went by, however, Heckler emerged from her shell and by the time she graduated, was one of five nominees for the Outstanding Senior award.

Even while carrying a double major, in psychology and American Sign Language, Heckler was involved in a wide-range of college-related activities. As a Church and College Scholar, Heckler was a member of the Kerygma singers and worked in the Chaplain's Coffee House her senior year. Though not a voice major, she was a four-year member of the MC Concert Choir. She was assistant editor and then editor of the yearbook, The Chilhowean. She spent a year as a resident assistant in Davis Hall, and spent several years as an invaluable student Phonathon coordinator for the Alumni and Development office.

Perhaps the most significant campus involvement she had, and the one that she credits with helping her attain her present job, was her role as a peer mentor on campus. Heckler was involved with the peer mentoring program for three years and was coordinator for two years. "MC Peer Mentors help freshmen make the transition from high school to college. We give counsel and orientation; we're a resource, really give a lending hand to students throughout their freshman year," she says.

Today, Heckler makes a 45 minute, one-way commute from Maryville to her job at Camelot Care Center in Kingston, TN, four days a week. As full-time program assistant and part-time teacher, she maintains an intense four days on, three days off schedule, sometimes arriving home at 3 a.m. Her charges, ages 7-17, are emotionally disturbed young people, very often victims of abuse, who are in the "home" to learn how to live again and how to be productive members of society. "We teach them," says Heckler, "to take responsibility for their actions. We are not a lock down facility." The danger to her life comes when violence erupts among those who have been victims of violence in their young lives.

Heckler found her life's work when she responded to an ad about the job in May and says she knew as soon as she saw the facility, on a hill, overlooking the mountains, that it was "where I needed to be." She credits her background, skills, and peer mentoring experience with helping her land the job. And what about the future?

Heckler expects to spend a few more years "getting real world experience" and then starting back to school on the road to a masters and doctorate. "If you're going to help other people, you need to believe in what they're about," she says. "Maryville College believed in me and now I want to help others believe in themselves too."

Rebecca Heckler is but one example of the many more alumni who have found their way at Maryville College. Something about MC and its people, both those who are here now and those who have gone before, inspires students to reach out and help others--to make a difference in their lives.

"If you're going to help other people, you need to believe in what they're about," she says. "Maryville College believed in me and now I want to help others believe in themselves too."

Many friends and former students of Maryville College want to pass on the opportunities the College has given them. The Society of 1819 was founded in January of 1997 to recognize those who have made a commitment to Maryville College through bequests, insurance policies, gift annuities, charitable trusts and other planned gifts. Named in honor of the founding year of the College, the Society of 1819 celebrates these farsighted donors and their belief in the enduring value of a liberal arts education.

Focal Points

*G*reetings from the Maryville College campus!

Ours is a campus marked by change this fall--the new Beeson Residence Village, six new tennis courts, older residence halls that have been extensively refurbished and refurnished, new parking lots, improved walkways and new lighting, historic Anderson and Fayerweather Halls with spruced up exteriors, an expanded dining area in Pearsons Hall. The changes are visible and exciting. Alumni readers of Focus who return for Homecoming and class reunions will be able to see for themselves the results of all the activity that those of us living here have watched over the past several months.

Some alumni may, at the same time, need reassurance that changes in facilities on campus don't signify an abandonment of Maryville's heritage. If so, I offer that reassurance happily. In fact, some of the changes make reconnections to the past. The new Beeson Village was designed, for example, to fit on a campus with historic buildings, with the brick carefully chosen for that purpose, and with white columns and trim that echo architectural elements of Carnegie Hall. The village includes a new Memorial Hall, one that sits on the footprint of the original Memorial Hall built in 1871 that was home to so many students before it was razed in 1975. And over in Fayerweather, the third floor, long closed off, has been reclaimed for offices and a conference room.

These are physical changes, of course. They matter, but they are hardly at the heart of the Maryville experience. Although the new Maryville Curriculum was fashioned by faculty few of whom have names in the history books, it continues a proud tradition of transformational education. The faculty who designed it care just as deeply about their students and have just as much impact on their lives as teachers whose names are more familiar to Focus readers from earlier decades. The liberal arts passion and the grounding in values endures at Maryville.

So does the commitment to education for service. In the late twentieth century colleges have most often used as an argument for education what it will do to enrich the lives of individual students and prepare them for careers. Though these are important outcomes of a good liberal arts education, we believe that the very best education aims for something more. This college continues its tradition of encouraging students to look beyond the self, and to embrace the goal of education that prepares one for service to others. From the hundreds of ministers and missionaries in our alumni ranks to the scores of Bonner and Bradford Scholars enrolled in 1997, there is a persisting proud tradition of service to humankind.

We invite Focus readers to visit the Maryville College campus of 1997. All the changes in physical facilities will be visible, but view those knowing that it is the invisible, enduring qualities that define most certainly what kind of place this is. Three of Isaac Anderson's great-great-great grandchildren visited the campus this past summer. At the conclusion of the visit they expressed conviction that he would approve of what has happened at Maryville College. I believe that he would indeed.

Memories of college experiences inspire donors

Recent gifts give momentum to MC2000 Plan

On the surface, two gifts recently given to Maryville College may seem as unrelated as a Boeing 747 and an early-model Studebaker.

One gift will go toward endowing scholarships; the other, toward the renovation of Bartlett Hall for use as a new student center.

One will be manifested in the purchase of airplane tickets, meals of foreign cuisine or approved drinking water; the other, in the purchase of bricks, mortar or furnishings.

One gift will open the eyes of Maryville College students to a wider, changing world, while the other will remind students of a much different world -- an earlier era, a different Maryville College.

The gifts are seemingly different. As different as night and day.

But when a college establishes a focused mission like the MC2000 Plan, and when friends like Richard and Anne Ragsdale and alums like Fred Young believe in that mission to the extent that they would financially support its strategic goals, no gift is ever mutually exclusive of the others. And no gift -- regardless of its source, amount, reason or restriction -- stands alone as long as the intent behind such contributions remains the same: to help Maryville College become the "best possible college."

This summer, Maryville College received a $500,000 gift from the Ragsdales that will go toward endowment of the Ragsdale International Scholarship Program. Fred Young contributed $100,000, which will go toward establishing a room memorializing Carnegie Hall Proctor E.E. "Mr. Mac" McCurry in a student center currently in the planning stages.

Venturing out, reaching goals

Within the MC2000 Plan and its strategic goals for the college's curriculum by the year 2000, the aim is that Maryville College will "emphasize international and cross-cultural experience for students, with a significant number participating."

Maryville College has in place "sister school" arrangements that allow for a direct tuition exchange, but with the Ragsdale International Scholarship Program implemented, students wishing to participate in an extended study abroad will be eligible to apply for a scholarship of up to $2,000 for expenses incurred while out of the country.

College administrators estimate that five Maryville College students study abroad every academic year. According to Academic Vice President Dr. Dean Boldon, the Ragsdale scholarships will be "especially important" to those students who, otherwise, would not be able to manage the extra costs of an overseas experience.

And the scholarships will be important to faculty members who set a high priority on study abroad when developing the MC2000 Master Plan, he added.

"The plan calls for a five-year emphasis on expanding study abroad opportunities and increasing student participation," Boldon said. "These goals reaffirm the college's rich heritage of international ties and curricular focus on intercultural understanding."

The value of studying abroad is something to which Ragsdale, chairman of the MC Board of Directors, can speak personally. While a student at the Ohio University in 1964, he spent a semester studying in Vienna, Austria. Ragsdale's son Kevin, a 1993 graduate of Maryville College, boarded a 747 for a semester in Germany while a student in 1991.

"It was my own experience and Kevin's experience that played a role in this decision to establish a scholarship," Ragsdale said. "I found that to be a fascinating experience. Living in Austria was my first exposure to another culture, to another language, and it broadened my horizons and eventually stimulated my interest in international business.

"We wanted to endow a program that would share this type of experience with future generations of students."

The MC Board chairman said he returned from Austria in 1964 with a deeper appreciation of the United States' development and a deeper appreciation, too, of how people in other countries live, work and interact.

"I think this (scholarship) program fits in with the history of the college, too," Ragsdale added. "Maryville has a long history of involvement with international students; almost everyone knows the Kin Takahashi story, but also some 20 percent of the faculty and staff have lived or studied abroad.

"That's a big plus."

Remembering devotion, perpetuating a name

As a high school senior, Fred Young probably never dreamed of studying abroad. But in 1933, Maryville College was probably as foreign to him as any college or university in Vienna, Austria, or Kassel, Germany.

Born and reared in the rural East Tennessee community of Whitesburg, Young graduated from a finishing school that produced few, if any, college-bound students. On the advice of his principal at Whitesburg High School, Young enrolled at Maryville College in the fall of 1933. At Maryville, he was told, help would be available -- scholastically and financially -- for a poor farm boy who was ill-prepared for the bills and books of higher education.

That first year, Young moved into Carnegie Hall and lived under the watchful eyes of dormitory proctor "Mr. Mac." He was employed in the college's extensive work program, helping build the stone staircase behind Carnegie Hall and picking strawberries and digging sweet potatoes on the college farm. The pay -- 15 cents an hour -- wasn't enough to cover expenses even though Young lived meagerly.

"After the first year, I knew I didn't have the money to go back," Young said. "I never mentioned my financial difficulties to Mr. Mac, but he seemed to know about everything that went on around there.

"Before I left Maryville to go home that summer after my freshman year," Young continued, "Mr. Mac told me he wanted me for his assistant. That was considered to be one of the best jobs on campus; it was salaried. And it usually went to a senior, because the job was helping Mr. Mac maintain discipline in the dormitory."

McCurry learned during the summer of 1934 (after Young had returned to the family farm in Whitesburg) that the rising sophomore had been approved for the assistantship.

Young remembers the day he heard the good news -- the day he learned he could return to Maryville and earn enough money to pay for school.

"It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, I guess," Young said. "I was out milking the cows. Mr. Mac always drove a Studebaker, and I saw his car drive up to our farm. We didn't have any telephones, no electric lights, running water or anything -- no interstates or good roads, either.

Dr. Gerald Gibson, Eugene McCurry, son of "Mr. Mac", and Fred Young

"I don't know why Mr. Mac didn't just write me a letter and tell me that I had the job," Young continued. "Instead, he drove those 60 plus miles to our house. In those days, that was a good day's trip."

Such concern and commitment to Maryville College students was characteristic of Mr. Mac, Young said. The proctor's "management style" was based on common sense.

"He understood teenagers and college guys," Young said. "He'd seen enough of them, I guess, and knew how to deal with them. But he treated every student with honor and dignity; I didn't detect any favorites."

Young said he had the "highest regard" for McCurry, who oversaw the men in Carnegie Hall from 1920 until 1959. Mr. Mac was, in Young's words, "a remarkable guy."

"He devoted his whole life to students of Maryville College," Young said. "Mr. McCurry is a name that should be perpetuated somewhere around the campus; there ought to be something with his name on it."

Young said he thought E.E. McCurry would be proud of the improvements made on campus (particularly the renovation of Carnegie Hall) and the direction in which MC2000 is leading the college.

A student center facility that will provide a "gathering place for students, faculty and staff;" "furnish opportunities for recreation;" and "serve to strengthen the sense of campus community" is a strategic goal of that mission.

A residence life center is included in the plans for the new student center. It is this space college administrators have recommended be named in memory of McCurry. Young, however, does have some reservations regarding the plans for the memorial.

"I just don't know if this is good enough for Mr. Mac," he said.

While McCurry's residents may best answer the dilemma of what is a "good enough" way to remember the long-time Carnegie Hall proctor, Maryville College President Dr. Gerald Gibson said he believes it is very appropriate to memorialize him in the department of residence life.

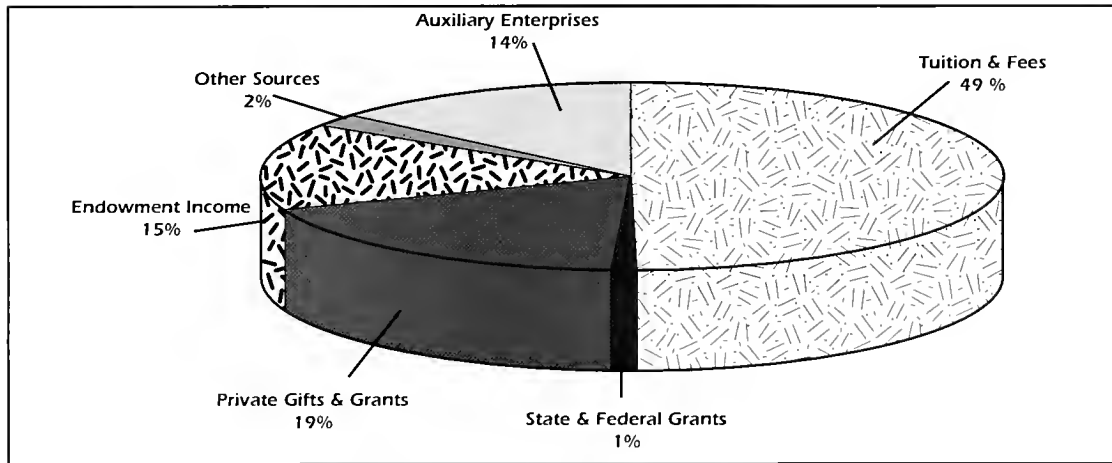

"In my four years as president of Maryville College, I've heard many stories about Mr. Mac," Gibson said. "In talking with those who knew him well, it is apparent to me that this was one man who cared deeply for Maryville College students and understood the important role residence life plays in a college education.

"Remembering life lessons and good experiences gained in their own college years, both Fred Young and Dick Ragsdale have decided that the same opportunities should be given to future Maryville students," the president continued. "Their gifts will, without question, help us meet the goals of MC2000."

Alumni News

It feels great.

That's my usual response to people – on and off campus – who ask me how it feels to be back at Maryville College after graduating three years ago. I choose that response because I believe those three words best answer the question without expending too much of the inquirer's time.

Of course, "It feels great" is a sound bite.

And coming directly from a two-year career in the newspaper business, I hate sound bites. They never tell the whole story; they play on people's emotions instead of reason; they are often the creation of an editor or producer who needs something to support his or her view of the news.

So when I was given the opportunity to use my major (writing and communications) and pen, for publication, the complete and unedited story of what it "feels like" for me to daily walk the sidewalks and hallowed hallways of MC once again, I ... I ...

Hesitated.

I now find the question as difficult as one recently asked me by a friend who has never visited Maryville College.

"Why should anyone go there?" he asked, really wanting to know.

I rattled off something about teacher-student ratios, the beauty of the campus in all seasons, the Senior Thesis requirement.

"You're sounding like a billboard," he replied. "Really – why should anyone want to go to school there?"

Rarely do I find myself at a loss for words – especially when it comes to discussions surrounding Maryville College ("walking billboard" is how friend and fellow alumna Julie Walker '94 describes me), but I was. After a long pause, I finally told him it would take a visit to the campus and more time than he had that evening to explain.

But could I ever explain to my friend that feeling that overcomes me when the bagpiper leads the procession of graduates, faculty and staff at Spring

Commencement? Or the tears that roll from my eyes when the College's choir sings the Lutkin Benediction? Or all the memories that reappear in my mind's eye when I smell the smells inside Thaw Hall, Anderson or Pearsons? Those emotions were four years in the making. How could I possibly explain the value of a Maryville College education -- a Maryville College experience -- in a few minutes?

"You're sounding like a billboard," he replied. "Really -- why should anyone want to go to school there?"

Alums are likely to understand the difficulty of the question. Faculty and staff understand. To some extent, parents of students do, too.

Dr. Gerald Gibson talks of listening to the stories MC alums share with him when he makes visits on and off campus. "The 'Maryville experience' is described as 'life changing,'" the president says. "It's the same in California, New Jersey, or Chattanooga ... Names of faculty and staff who impacted personally the values, aspirations, and directions of alumni are remembered in countless stories."

Today, I am a part of that staff. As Director of Alumni and Parent Relations, I realize that I won't be in a position to directly impact students like other members of the staff and faculty, but I will be in a position to pass along the stories and the traditions in the stories, letting them speak for themselves.

That's just one aspect of my job that I look forward to – one that makes it "feel great" to be back and to fellowship with alums and friends of the College who understand that the questions surrounding the uniqueness and hallowedness of this place aren't easily answered in few words.

And then there is the aspect of my job that places me back in an atmosphere where Maryville's "lifetime of learning" covenant is so easily practiced. Community forum. A well-equipped library. Guest speakers. Music and drama performances.

How does it feel to be back? I expect I'll be asking alums that same question when they return for Homecoming, class reunions, banquets, luncheons, or "just-in-the-neighborhood" visits. I'll be interested in the replies.

And I'll wait patiently through the pause.

Your Alumni Board Members

One graduated in 1962; another in 1993. The other three bid Maryville College a fond farewell in the years between, but now all five new members of the Maryville College National Alumni Board are members of the Class of 2000 – the Alumni Board's Class of 2000, that is.

Serving on the Board until that millennium year will be: Martha Bess (Ellis) DeWitt, '64; E. Russell Gibson, '82; David King, '93; Roger Nooe, '62; and Judy Penry, '73.

Martha Bess DeWitt is currently the Director of Christian Education at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Nashville. After earning a bachelor of arts degree from Maryville in 1964, DeWitt went on to Vanderbilt University, where she received an M.A.T. degree in English in 1965. Following the birth of her two children, Michael and Sara, DeWitt sought another degree, an M.A. in Christian Education, which she earned from VU in 1980. In addition to church-related obligations, she is on the local advisory board for Pathways Center Network. DeWitt and husband Michael are proud grandparents of Kiya Kathryn DeWitt, born last November.

MC's current on-campus physician, E. Russell Gibson, graduated from Maryville in 1982 and then enrolled in the medical school of East Tennessee State University. Graduating from that program in 1986, Gibson completed his residency at ETSU in 1989. An FFA medical examiner and certified medical review officer, Gibson now lives in Maryville and is a physician with East Tennessee Baptist Health System. He is a member of the Blount County Medical Society, Tennessee Medical Association and the American Academy of Family Physicians. He and wife Kay Lippincott Gibson, '84, have three young children, Katie, Andrew and Richard. They are members of Pleasant Hill United Methodist Church in Sevierville.

MC alum David King is currently an associate with Swift, Currie, McGhee and Hiers law firm in Atlanta, Georgia. A 1996 cum laude graduate from the University of Georgia Law School, King was a member of the Student Bar Association there and active in both school and statewide mock trial competitions. He is a member of the Chapel Hill Harvester Church.

Roger Nooe is a professor in the University of Tennessee's College of Social Work. After graduating from MC in 1962, Nooe earned both his master's and doctoral degrees in Social Work from Tulane University. Active in efforts for the Knoxville Coalition for the Homeless and the Symposium for the Advancement of Family Therapy. Roger has given numerous presentations to community groups on the organizations' behalf. He and wife Carol (Cox) Nooe, '63, have one daughter, Dr. Lindsey Harrell, and are members of the West Hills Baptist Church in Knoxville.

Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Energy is 1973 graduate Judy Penry. Judy received her master's degree in Business Administration in 1975 from the University of Tennessee. A member of the Church Street United Methodist Church, she calls Knoxville home.
